Description (revised)Vehicle Description

Hahahahahaha. Here we go again! In our last episode, the mighty Darth Quota rung up 10,000 hits, over a hundred questions and ZERO bids. So-what's the problem? You afraid of buying one of Guzzi's many ENGINEERING SOLUTIONS TO PROBLEMS THAT NO ONE ASKED? Yeah, that's fine. Just move one to the next auction, weenie-boy. Nothing to see here. Maybe look for a nice R1100GS. Those BMW guys are cordial enough, and they smell nice. That's a much easier path to take than with this GUZZI WEIRDO STATION WAGON. Hint: look for a GS that already has hard bags, heated seat with hemorrhoid perch, a built in portable hibachi and an assortment of RAM mounts for your GPS, satellite phone, police scanner, garage door opener, night vision screen, and UFO beacon. Oh, and cupholders. Make sure you get a GS with some nice cupholders. No sense in having an ADVENTURE RIDE if you can't bring along a nice hazelnut frappuccino. You can lowball the current owner, and he'll probably bite because he's too afraid of his rear drive disintegrating in the middle of his ADVENTURE RIDE to Timbuktu, at which point he would have to move into that quaint native village that he formerly enjoyed tearing a$$ through. I hear that the Village Idiot has a daughter that's right about the marryin' age (...14 harvests- completely legal in greater Timbuktu). Yeah, you'll look like a real farking Ponce De Leon as you pave new trails to the Coffee Bean and Tea Leaf on your new GS. You can sit around the campfire at your next rally of like-minded motorcycle consumers and talk about which fancy new accoutrements from the Rider Warehouse catalog (an 100+ page compendium of completely unnecessary motorcycle crap) you'll be purchasing next. OR maybe you are actually a Guzzi Weirdo prospect. You want to buy your way into a circle of motorcycling friends who will respect you even though you weren't always the first pick on the kickball team back in grade school. "That Jim, he dresses like the 99-cent rack at the Salvation Army thrift store, he smells like the fish counter at Kroger's and he's always got something hanging out of his nose, but he rides a GUZZI so he must be OK". Well, this Quota gets you into that club for well under four big ones. Then you can gain the immediate admiration from all the other ADV rider wackos when you add "Quota" to your profile sig. Yeah, instant credibility. Not bad for under four thousand bucks. Heck, you don't even have to ride the damn thing. Lemme break it to you- nobody else on that website rides motorcycles, either. The truth is that they're all in fact "care receivers" at a small mental institution in lower Des Moines, and that the internet is thought to be good therapy for their megalomania and obsessive, chronic onanism. To sweeten the deal here, I've dropped the price on the Quota a few hundred bucks from last time because I'm sick of looking at it in my driveway, and the neighbors are starting to complain about the four bikes sitting in front of my house. Good thing they don't know about the bodies under the porch, huh. OK. I'm sure that I now have the attention of every TIGHTWAD ADVENTURE RIDER within earshot of the internet. Yes, you too can recapture your lost childhood and win the admirations of your fellow Kinkos employees by becoming the latest in a series of brilliant motorcycle marketing archetypes: THE ADVENTURE RIDER [roll Morricone's "The Good the Bad and the Ugly" theme]....best of all, this Quota is cheap! Oh, and did I mention that it's CHEAP? Yeah. Are you the guy who always draws funny looks from your riding companions when it's time to pay the tab at "The Feedin Trough" after your 50 mile ride? Have you used "All I have is plastic-how bout I get ya next time..." on your buddies to the point where...hmmm... they haven't really been calling you to go on rides, lately, have they? Well, then, tenderfoot... have I got a deal for you. This bike is CALLING YOUR NAME. With this, the CHEAPEST QUOTA IN THE KNOWN UNIVERSE, you can become a certified ADVENTURE RIDER for less than four g's. That means that you'll still have some extra cash left over to buy those day old bagels from the Bargain Basement Bakery, and shop for formal wear at that one stall at the truck stop flea market. [Oh, and here's a nugget for all you broke-assed poverty riders: You can sit in McDonalds ALL DAY and drink coffee- all ya gotta do is pay for the first cup. Mmmmm! Tastes like FREE! Maybe they'll let you have a big BMW/ADVENTURE rally in the parking lot! Lemme know if I can help. I'll speak with the Assistant Manager...] So-got a question on the bike? I'll save you some time: Yes, it runs. Yes, it has tires. Yes, you can jump on it and ride back home to your hotel room in downtown Witchita straight forth. The other specifics, I prefer to leave to remain mired in mystery that is ADVENTURE RIDING. You want adventure? I'll give you some. Hand me a stack of hundreds and let's see how far you get on this piggie. Here's the part where I shut up about the pile that I'm selling and answer your inane, maddening and very rarely insightful questions Let 'em rip. Oh, and watch for a short treatise on internet motorcycle wackos by yours truly in the next issue of MOTORCYCLIST MAGAZINE, the BEST motorcycle rag in the farking world.

Q: If i bought your quota thingamajig... could i ride it with my buell friends, you know i gotta fit in and this quatro thing, it seems to be different. But i would also have to sell my buell to buy your quato, so what would you recomend? A: They seemed to like it when I rode with them to the Monster Truck event in the Wal Mart parking lot. Maybe it was my knee high leather sequined boots, elbow length gold spandex gloves with LED lighted fingertips, my exposed pierced nipples safety wired together, and my special transparent plexiglass helmet with working tropical fish tank. Heck, I even shaved my back for that ride.	Jan-15-08

Q: Please explain those weird looking headlights? If I pull up at Starbucks without two different sized headlights like my GS has will my friends still drink vente, soy milk, de-caf, chocolate mocha lattes with a single shake of cinnamon between 160 and 162 degrees with me or will I have to ride that scary 1.3 miles home without a warm drink? The funny eyes on the Quota might scare everyone? A: A GS rider commenting on aesthetics....that's like the pope reviewing pornos.	Jan-15-08
Q: If I buy this, will my therapist say that I am making progress? And what does 'GS' stand for, 'golden showers'? A: Gargantuan Sh*t	Jan-15-08
Q: I notice what appears to be two headlights. Low beam for one and hi beam for the other? Also, are the hardbags TSA certified? Thanks in advance A: You powers of perception, sir, (at least as they extend to headlight technology) are UNCANNY!!!! Yes, indeed, the Tourettes Sufferers of America have certified those hard bags as (God*&^*ed F&ing!!!!!!!!)A-OK!	Jan-15-08
Q: Quota backwards is Atouq. Klingon for "die you disrespecting infidel". We are onto you. Pack a bag, the black Suburban will be there for you in an hour. Don't bother to pack cigars.They never stay lit during the waterboarding. Seriously, will Fatimas' beach burka fit in the saddlebag?	Jan-15-08

A: YES, MY FLEND. I VEDDY MUCH LIKE FOR YOU BUY MY GUZZI MOTOCYCLE. I MADE YOU GOOD OFFER FOR FREE SALSA DANCE LESSON WITH MIDGET IN EL SEGUNDO WITH PURCHASE AND MYE BROTHER MAKE YOU A NICE ASHTRAY HAT THAT YOU WEAR ON SATURDAY NITE FOR IN HANG AROUND DRUG STORE PARKING LOT AND TALK ABOUT BREAKDANCING MOVIES FROM 1980S, ELEKTRIK BOOGALOO, YES MY FLEND. YOU WILL RIKEY MY POO PILE QUOTER REALLY MUCH.
Q: Amico, Love the Quota... and love your narrative even more. But just put down cash on a "71 "Ambo with Attitude" for sale in Seattle, so will have to pass on this one... Hope your bike is half as good as your writing! Cheers, jim	Jan-15-08
A: :-)
Q: I,d like to here about the bike. Maybe what you do like, at least about the one you're selling. i am interested and would like to know;mileage how long yo have had it,upgrades? Thanks for your time.	Jan-15-08
A: Hi, there. This is one great machine. I use it for commuting, recreational riding, and as a dependable getaway vehicle. I very much enjoy doing burnouts in grocery store parking lots with it. I have only had it fully sumberged under water five or ten times. Every 3000 miles, I drain all the engine oil. I filter out the metal chunks and pour what's left back in the engine. It has only been stolen from me twice.I have performed the following upgrades: 1. added seatbelts 2. drilled lightening holes in pistons (old racer trick) 3. changed to euro spec blinker fluid 4. drilled lightening holes in brake pads. The bike was only set on fire once, so it's barely broken in. The speedometers only go up to 100,000 miles, so I'm not sure that mine is accurate. I think you should buy it right away. Ya know what they say- you snooze, you lose!
Q: Lawn looks nice, do you tow a mower with that thing?	Jan-15-08
A: The price of a wonderful lawn is ETERNAL VIGILENCE. I start each morning by sprinkling a fertilizer coctail of my own design on the entire lawn. I gently massage each square inch of grass with a circular motion and a light touch to help it absorb the essential nutrients. I water it by hand with a spray bottle set to a very fine mist, giving approximately three squeezes to each square inch of lawn. Then I finish up with a quick trim (by hand, of course) with a pair of high quality razor sharp German pruning scissors.If all goes well, I can usually finish all this in about 6 hours. Look for a local franchise of my Mister Edward's Lawn Care Boutique in a city near you.
Q: Your ad has presented a real conondrum for me: Buy your gay donut-delivery bike, a used Honda 90 with missing shifter, a trip to Wallyworld with a 67 year old hooker, or paying off the cremation bill for my albino hampster! What to do!!!!???	Jan-13-08
A: I'm sorry. Only one answer per internet wacko, jb4boatn2. Otherwise, I'll use up the twenty minutes per day they give us here at the institution answering emails from the same three internet bike nerds, and that would detract from time that would be better spent wooing Britney now that she's all needy and vulnerable and stuff.
Q: Since your comments have deflected all attention from the bike to your life thoughts, why not drop the starting bid to one dollar and see how much hour humor is really worth?	Jan-13-08
A: You're sending emails to some wacko on the interweb about a bike that you obviously have no interest in buying, so who has more free time, me or you? PS: I'm not wearing any pants while I type this.
Q: If the natives wanted to keep King Kong out of their village by building a huge wall around them, why did they make a giant door he could fit through?	Jan-13-08
A: That was an unfortunate result of the local building codes.
Q: Ummmmmmmm..... I have a question.....How much is $3899.00 in Euros ? I don't have any 6-packs of Mr. Pibb,but I do have a Harley-Davidson 6-pack of 90th Anniversary Pabst-Blue Ribbon Beer sittin' on the shelf for tradin'. Also got a 1982 Virago 750 I figure is worth at least $400 big ones. Can pay the rest in Canadian Funds,certified of course. Let me know.....	Jan-13-08
A: Heck, yeah, PBR and Viragos. The only thing that would be better is some hot nachos from the Kmart snack bar and front row seats at the tractor pull.
Q: I see that you will deliver to forward air terminal at LAX. Does this mean that it is un-ridable in it's current condition?	Jan-13-08
A: LAX. You know- the place where out hang out at the baggage terminal with a little sign that says "Smith" just so someone will talk to you.
Q: My mommy says that buying an Italian motorcycle with 60k is like buying a Dino Ferrari with 300k miles.	Jan-13-08
A: That's funny, cuz she didn't say that to me when I picked her up last night after her shift at the bait shop.

- Q: My neighbor told me that owning a motorcycle is a good way to show everybody that you care about the environment. Could I take it a step further by buying your bike, upping the compression, and converting it to run on bio-diesel? Jan-13-08
- A: Yeah, do everything your neighbor tells you, especially the stuff about hanging out at the local shopping mall in a Nazi officer's uniform with a sign that says "Schtopp the war in Iraq!", and knocking on the doors of semis at the truck stop and asking the residents if they want to see your collection of potatoes that resemble celebrities.
- Q: what will you take in on trade? I have three kids, two cats(one is PG so that's like 6for the price of one) and a lawboy push mower i'dd like to trade staight up for the guzzy thing-a-ma-bob Jan-13-08
- A: Will trade for a hand carved life sized butter sculpture of Charles Nelson Reilly, the limited edition set of Village People Beanie Babies, Corey Feldman's cell phone number, an "Outlaw Bike 1%er" Precious Moments figurine, and a 6 pack of Mr. Pibb.

Question & Answer	Answered On
Q: Can i ride it to Hawaii?? A: Sure. You should practice first, though. Ride it back and forth to your maintenance job at the YMCA for a few weeks wearing nothing but your Snell(tm) approved floral print helmet, a grass skirt, and some water wings. Grow a big gnarly Magnum PI mustache, too.	Jan-13-08
Q: Does it have an "ADV" sticker on it? I know that the "GS" in the BMW R1200GS stands for Gelände Straße. What does the ES stand for? Ectoplasm and Slime? A: Exceedingly Slow	Jan-13-08
Q: Ed, sit and sleep are offering $300 worth of gas with any mattress purchase, will you offer a free mattress with the sale of this quota? Thanks, Jon A: I will offer $300 in gas from Pink's Hot Dogs. This will consist of a "buy twelve get twelve free" coupon for the "nuclear nitrate" dog with chili, habanero peppers, head cheese and formaldehyde.	Jan-13-08
Q: Will this bike get me to Alaka without burning any oil? If it does burn some oil, can I get my money back? A: It's the perfect bike to ride for oil exploration of Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR). Take your 24 V Dewalt cordless and a long drill bit, and you can get federal funding for your efforts. Hurry! ...before Obama gets elected.	Jan-13-08
Q: If you weren't 3000 miles away and I didn't already have one more bike than I need, I'd bid out of respect for your sarcasm. Good job ! A: Cross country delivery available via my good buddy, poverty rider Guzzi Vern. Just pay for his gas and a 4 day supply of sardines, 7-11 roller dogs, and Red Bull.	Jan-13-08
